Paralysis Defeated!

BLEEDING PILES,

Headache and Dyspepsia

CURED BY SKODA.

MRS MELVIN IS A LADY OF INTELLIGENCE, HONESTY AND TRUTHFULNESS, AND HIGHLY ESTEEMED BY ALL HER NEIGHBORS AND FRIENDS SHE WILL CORROBORATE ALL THE STATEMENTS IN THE FOLLOWING LETTER.

GENTLEMEN —For years I had a terrible trouble with my stomach—my food souring immediately after eating, together with a severe headache. I would have a prickly, numb sensation in my arms, and down my sides, with strong tendency towards Paralysis. For thirteen years I have been troubled with extreme Constipation, combined with that most terrible tormentor, BETTER Bleeding Piles. At times they would bleed profusely, and pain me severely so that I could neither sit, stand, sleep or eat. I became very much reduced in flesh and strength, and felt completely worn out. I have tried nearly all the Physicians in this vicinity, and have taken patent medicines in large quantities, but received no permanent benefit. Through a friend, my attention was called to the merits of SKODA'S REMEDIES. I consented to try them, having but little THAN faith in their efficacy. I at first felt but little effect, but persisted in their use. I have now taken four bottles of SKODA'S DISCOVERY, used two boxes of SKODA'S PILE CURE and four boxes SKODA'S LITTLE TABLETS. My Dyspepsia is all gone, Bowels regular, Appetite good, and have gained much in flesh. In fact, AM PERFECTLY WELL.

All credit is due to your Wonderful Remedies, GOLD and I cannot say too much in their praise.

Truly yours,
MRS CAPT. J. E. MELVIN,

Hair and Eyebrows Fell Off. Doctor and Many Remedies No Benefit. Entirely Cured and Hair Restored by Cuticura.

My wife has been troubled for years with dry crusts and scales on her head and eyebrows. After seeming to lie dormant for years in her system, it broke out over a year ago in all its fury. Her hair came out in big patches, her eyebrows all fell off, and she presented a pitiable condition. We tried almost everything, but she continued to get worse. Then we tried one of our best physicians, but all to no purpose. Finally my wife believed that the CUTICURA REMEDIES would cure her. After she had used nine boxes of CUTICURA, and about a dozen cakes of CUTICURA SOAP, and four bottles of CUTICURA RESOLVENT, she was cured entirely. Her hair came on again, and to-day she has as fine a head of black curly hair and as smooth skin as any lady in Allentown. Her eyebrows are heavier than they ever were, her scalp is free from dandruff and her health is excellent. Now for the benefit of those suffering with same disease, or to those who may doubt the truthfulness of this statement, write me, inclosing a stamp, and I will cheerfully answer. I am sure that the CUTICURA REMEDIES cured my wife, for she used nothing else during the four or five months she used them.

GREAT LOSS OF LIFE FEARED.

Worst Storm in Forty Years in Venezuela.

Many Houses Wrecked by Awful Land Slides.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11. A special from Laguayra says the most disastrous storm that city has experienced in forty years, swept down the Silla de' Caracas, last night. The damage done is great and spreads over a wide area. There were some terrible landslides and many houses were wrecked. It is feared that there has been a great loss of life. The mountain railroad which connects Laguayra with Caracas has been completely destroyed.

THE COLUMBUS CELEBRATION.

Great Naval Demonstration in New York Harbor.

A Large Number of Spectators Witness the Display.

NEW YORK, Oct. 8. The naval parade was one of the features of the Columbus celebration. Early this morning thousands started for good places to view the naval demonstration, and in a short time every available place on, and overlooking the bay, was crowded. Many secured seats on roofs of tall buildings, and there were hundreds of excursion boats anchored at convenient points in the harbor. The parade started at 12.30 and presented a picturesque and imposing spectacle. The Philadelphia was the flag ship and headed the column. The parade was made up of war ships and other government ships, municipal boats, steam yachts, eight divisions of merchant vessels, fleet of naval reserve, consisting of 16 tugs, divided into four squadrons. Millions of bright colored flags waved to the breeze from flag staffs and windows, the air seemed alive with fluttering bunting, and all the display of color was delightfully brightened by the glorious sunshine. The bay seemed covered from shore to shore with sailing vessels and other steam craft of all sizes and descriptions.

Sufficient pledges for the stock of the Brooks Arms and Tool Company have already been received to assure the establishing of the plant to manufacture the guns, rifles and other inventions owned by this company, says the Portland Press. The business will commence at South Portland in a conservative, small and safe way, utilizing the present machinery and with the capital coming from the sales of stock, rather than put it into a big building, to purchase new and improved machinery. A representative from the Brooks Arms and Tool Company gave an exhibition of the workings of a number of the small guns of the company at the rooms of the Merchant's Exchange, Saturday. During the day a large number of people, prominent in military affairs, visited the rooms, and all the visitors expressed themselves as highly pleased with the exhibition. The novel feature of these guns is their mechanical simplicity. A number of sporting men were present, and pronounced the sporting guns the best they had ever seen for trap-shooting, and the magazine gun, which it is thought, will satisfy the War Department, was the wonder of all.

CONGRESSMAN BOUTELLE AT ITHACA.

Great Republican Meeting at the Seat of Cornell University.

The Ithaca, N. Y., Daily Journal devotes several columns to a report of the great mass-meeting, addressed there on Thursday evening, Oct. 6, by Congressman Boutelle, which was presided over by Professor Thurston, of Cornell University, with several other members of the faculty among the vice-presidents upon the platform, who warmly congratulated the Maine Congressman upon his presentation of the issues of the canvass. The Journal's report says

At 7 45 last night the Young Men's Protective Club left Republican headquarters and marched down State street to Albany and countermarched to the Clinton House, from which place Professor Thurston and a company of distinguished Republican citizens were escorted to the opera house. Owing to the lateness of trains, Mr. Boutelle had not yet arrived, but was expected every moment. The opera house was quickly filled with people who were eager to hear the famous congressman, a large number of Democrats being among the number present. Smith's band then rendered a few selections, and the Young Men's Protective Club started a song in which everyone was invited to join, and words fitted to the tune of "John Brown" were sung with much enthusiasm. Mr E. C. Stewart then introduced Professor Robert H. Thurston as president of the meeting. The professor opened his address by thanking the meeting for the honor it had shown him, attributing the same to the fact of the large number of Republican students attending Cornell, a recent canvass showing that two-thirds of the student body were Republicans and he was glad of it. He was sorry that he could not with equal pleasure state that two-thirds of the faculty were Republicans, because they were not, but he could take pleasure in alluding to two fine specimens of the faculty who were Republicans, who sat on the stage, handsome and loyal, Dr. C. M. Tyler, who in the trying times of the war, with a prayer book in one hand and a sword in the other, went to the front to fight for the country he loved and for the freedom of man, be he white or black, and also that able exponent of law, Prof. C. E. Hughes. He stated that he had failed to find a Democrat among the faculty, those not being Republicans, were pleased to describe themselves as Mugwumps, (for the time being.) The professor then asked the pleasure of the meeting. Hon. Mynderse Van Cleef placed in nomination the following gentlemen a large number of vice-presidents of the meeting, headed by Hon. Henry W. Sage, Hon. A. B. Cornell, Prof. Chas. M. Tyler, Mynderse Van Cleef, Judge Bradford Almy, Prof H. B. Hutchins, Prof C. E. Hughes, Prof Chas Crandall, Doctor Tarbell, Frank C. Cornell, Hon A. H. Pierson and Hon. Nelson Stevens and they were elected unanimously.

Professor Thurston in a short speech arraigned the Democratic party for the bad measures and schemes which he claimed they supported. His arguments were good, and presented with a clearness and preciseness much appreciated by his listeners, who frequently interrupted him with loud applause. After calling attention to the fact that George Washington, Thomas Jefferson and Andrew Jackson were protectionists, he said he failed to see how the party who termed themselves Jeffersonian Democracy could denounce protection as fraud and as being unconstitutional. He then spoke on currency, and in a very happy way introduced the speaker of the evening, Congressman Charles A. Boutelle, of the Pine Tree State. Mr. Boutelle received an ovation from the audience as he stepped forward on the platform. He is a very handsome man, of commanding figure and a pleasing voice. After thanking the audience for their reception, and making a few introductory remarks as to Ithaca, Cornell and its vast number of Republican students, the speaker said that he failed to understand how any young man could ally himself with the Democratic party, the party of retrogression and obstruction; the party who were attacking the prosperity of the country, who disliked to hear of its prosperity.

The Journal, whose editor, Mr. Priest, one of the ablest journalists of Western New York, was present, gives quite an elaborate report of the address and also highly commends it in the following leading editorial

An Impressive Speech.

The Republican presidential campaign, in this county, for 1892, was formally and happily inaugurated, last evening, at this the county's capital.

Wilgus Opera House was taxed beyond its capacity to seat those present.

Chairman Thurston, in the pleasing manner with which this city is familiar, made the preliminary remarks preparing the way for a "wise man from the East," the orator of the evening, the Hon. Charles A. Boutelle, of Maine. Mr. Boutelle is serving his fifth term of Congress—one of the brightest luminaries in a galaxy of representatives unequalled by any State of double its dimensions in the sisterhood of States. Mr. Boutelle is the editor of the Bangor Daily "Whig and Courier." He is a fitting colleague of and no higher tribute can be paid any statesman and patriot than according him merited rank with these men who honor not alone their State but the whole country. Mr. Boutelle commended himself and his cause to his hearers, last evening. He spoke as a Republican and partisan but from the loftiest heights of proud American citizenship and hallowed patriotism. He had no time nor inclination for personalities, denunciations or mirthful anecdote. The cause he pleaded was too weighty for the wasting of time in froth or effervescing, evanescent nothings to be forgotten when the hall lights were turned out. He addressed the intelligence, conscience and patriotism of his hearers. He presented trite truths in new forms. There can be nothing new or original said of the Love of the human race for each other; or its love of country, right living and right doing. Only varied lights can be given such subjects, illuminating them unto varied powers of comprehension.

The orator-statesman from distant Maine vouchsafed to his audience in central New York a line of argument and a series of illustrations entirely new, different and delightful. His reasoning was logical and lucid. It was closely connected and when completed it stood an unanswerable, irrefutable, convincing fortress of human reason surrounding, guarding the sacred cardinal principle of Protection to Americans at Home and Abroad. Many distinguished orators have appealed to audiences from the platform occupied by last night's speaker. Not one of them has ever more impressively, more effectively, more lastingly appealed to the higher attributes of his listeners. The sentiments enunciated by Mr. Boutelle will survive beyond any

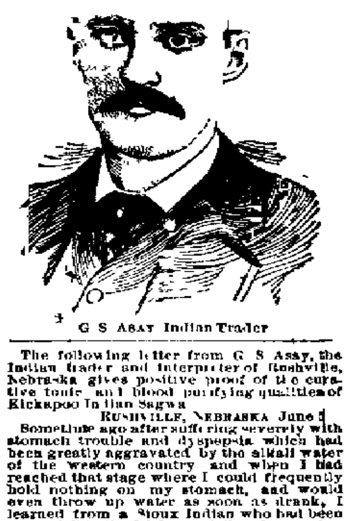
FROM THE FRONTIER.

An Indian Trader Tells His Story of Kickapoo Indian Sagwa.

Cured of a Distressing Stomach Trouble by Kickapoo Sagwa—First learned of the Medicine through a Souix Indian.

Here is another story from the frontier of the wonderful curative properties of the Kickapoo Indian Remedies and proof of their high regard among the frontiersmen and Indians.



G S ASAY Indian Trader

The following letter from G S Asay, the Indian trader and interpreter of Rushville, Nebraska gives positive proof of the curative tonic and blood purifying qualities of Kickapoo Indian Sagwa.

RUSHVILLE, NEBRASKA June 5

Sometime ago after suffering severely with stomach trouble and dyspepsia which had been greatly aggravated by the alkali water of the western country and when I had reached that stage where I could frequently hold nothing on my stomach, and would even throw up water as soon as drank, I learned from a Sioux Indian who had been on a visit to the Kickapoo tribe of a wonderful remedy called "Sagwa." I got him to procure some for me. The effect was remarkable. I tried to get more from the Indian, but he would not let me have more of his. He prized it so much he would not give it up. I then learned that Healy & Bigelow, of New Haven, Conn., had an arrangement with the Kickapoo tribe and was putting their remedies on the market. I sent and got a bottle and found it to be the same as that I had procured from the Sioux Indian. I got more, and after the use of a few bottles, I was not only relieved but entirely cured, and have stayed cured ever since.

I can eat anything set before me. Salt Bacon, which used to have a most distressing effect, I can now eat and relish like an Indian. I have also used the Kickapoo Indian Salve for my horses, when they have been cut severely on barbed wire fences, and it heals them right up.

I cannot speak too highly of the Kickapoo remedies. I keep them all in my trading post, and cheerfully recommend it to any one.

TO-DAY the 400TH ANNIVERSARY of the discovery of America will be hailed at sunrise with salvos of artillery in New York City.

Every church bell will respond to the boom of the cannon and the militia of New York and adjoining States, the civic societies, uniformed secret societies, [illegible] of firemen and G. A. R. posts will join the procession which will be 5 miles long.

The great rush for our Double Breasted sack suits, so very popular for young men, induced us to add a number of new styles of superior quality.

The shades are fine black, blue and pretty mixtures in Cheviots, Scotch Cashmeres and Worsteds. These suits are perfect in fit and made by journeymen tailors.

We also received six different patterns of Medium Grade Men's Heavy All Wool Double Breasted Sack Suits, good styles, very serviceable, which we offer at $6.50, $7.00 and $7.50. Every one worth $10.00. These will sell at sight.

Workingmen should remember the words of Mr Powderly who stated an important truth when he said "Yes, the Democratic party is the party of the poor man, and if he continues to vote that ticket he will never be anything else than a poor man " A vote for Cleveland is a vote for free trade and free trade wages.

The Democrats appear to have been premature in claiming Judge Cooley as a Cleveland man Judge Cooley contradicts the report that he had stated that he should vote for Mr Cleveland, and says

"I am too old and too feeble a man to take any active part in politics, and while I have great personal regard for the Democratic nominee, I can't say that I am ready to endorse all the principles of the platform for which he stands by casting a vote for him More than this I do not think it necessary for me to say "

Thus far Stevenson, the Democratic candidate for the Vice Presidency, has confined his campaign efforts almost exclusively to the South That is the portion of the country in which he is popular he having been a rank copperhead during the war In the meantime however, the old Union veterans are preparing for the battle of ballots and propose to bury Cleveland and Stevenson the vetoist and copperhead, very deep in the November election We have excellent Democratic authority for the statement that the old soldiers will not vote the Democratic ticket this year namely, the Honorable Bourke Cockran and Gen Sickles, both of whom gave due warning to the Chicago convention

Mr Harrity who is drawing a salary as Secretary of State in Pennsylvania while managing the canvass for "Reformer" Cleveland, concocted a nice little scheme to steal the electoral vote of that State for his master Acting under the new law it has been decided by the Secretary of State that the official ballot must be over four feet in length thus making it impossible for all but three or four printing offices in the State to do the work The plan was to keep the information concerning the size of the ballots from the Republicans until the strong Democratic localities were provided, when it would be too late for the Republican ballots to be printed This piece of rascality leaked out however and the Republicans will be prepared with their ballots in ample season Chairman Harrity's "fine work" will prove a failure but the people will be able to infer from this incident the character of the man at the head of the Democratic National Committee

Some of the numerous letters written by Cleveland early in the canvass, are now being recalled to his great disadvantage For instance in July he favored one of his admirers with the following epistle

GRAY GABLES,
BUZZARDS BAY Mass, July 14, 1892
Ralph E. Hoyt

My Dear Sir—Your letter of July 2d is at hand I am exceedingly gratified to learn of your intention to support the principles and candidates of Chicago I think no sincere advocate of an honest tariff can be dissatisfied with the position the Democratic party has assumed on the subject, and I am sure no one need fear that the contest will not be made on the lines laid down, which have already proved to be so acceptable to a great majority of the people —Yours very truly

GROVER CLEVELAND

Imagine the surprise of the recipient of that letter when Cleveland gave out his letter of acceptance In July Cleveland supposed that the campaign was to be conducted on the lines of the Democratic platform in which the "position" of the party was declared to be in favor of the genuine article of free trade Since then, however the calamity candidate has had his eyes opened to the fact that the people do not like the "position" of the Democrats on the tariff question hence the attempted straddle in the letter of acceptance.

Mr Cleveland for Wildcat Money.

The Cleveland letter of acceptance is silent on the subject of reviving the irresponsible State banks The author expends his support of honest money upon the discussion of the silver question On wildcat banking he dodges

"By this time it must be apparent to all classes of voters, who have had the universal inconvenience and the universal losses under the system of free banking brought to their minds in Mr Harrison's letter of acceptance, that the greatest financial danger now threatening the country is this effort to cot the land over again with the irresponsible banks of issue

The return of the Bank Note Reporter as a necessary publication for daily store and household reference would, indeed, be the visitation of a financial pestilence. As in the case of other plagues, the common people would suffer most Great houses and strong dealers would have means of protecting themselves which small tradesmen, and especially the laboring classes and customers, who buy from day to day, could not command. With much bank paper below par all notes would become suspicious, as in the days when wildcat banks flourished, and the laborer would again be obliged to submit daily to the loss of a few cents on what represented each day's labor.

This move for free banks, under the plea of furnishing more currency, is the deadliest blow aimed at the business

He vetoed the tenement house cigar bill, forbidding the manufacture of cigars in tenement houses.

He vetoed the bill compelling elevated roads of New York to charge only 5 cents fare.

He vetoed the printers' bill requiring all the State work to be done by union workmen.

He vetoed the bill making ten hours a legal day's work for all street car employes.

He vetoed the bill abolishing convict labor in prisons, although this proposition, when submitted to the popular vote of the people, was carried by a majority of 60,000.

He vetoed the child labor bill, providing for the inspection of factories where children were employed, and prohibiting the employment of children under 14 years of age.

He signed a bill compelling the stationary engineers of New York city to pay a tax of $2 per year to the police pension fund or be debarred from following their vocation

He signed the bill reducing the fees of the New York harbor pilots, which bill benefited only the foreign steamship monopolies

In addition to these, while President he refused his approval to a bill, passed unanimously by both houses of Congress, to prevent the employment of alien or convict labor on Government work.

A GRAND DISPLAY.

Another Day of Great Columbian Celebration in New York.

Grand Parades Both on Land and in the River.

NEW YORK, Oct 11. A rough estimate would number the multitude on the bluff at the northern extremity of Riverside Park, where Grant's tomb is, and where the naval parade disbanded to-day, at [illegible]00,000 people. The steep bank of the Hudson about here formed a natural reviewing place, which the committee of one hundred left free to the public. By [illegible] o'clock the long bank was one mass of human faces.

The head of the parade reached the disbanding point soon after three o'clock, and was received with cheers by the crowds which then filled every nook commanding the scene.

This evening occurred the parade of United Catholic societies. There were [illegible]000 Roman Catholics in line under command of Father Keefe and Victor Dowling

COLUMBUS CELEBRATIONS.

Knights of Columbus of Connecticut.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct 11. The Knights of Columbus of this State to-day is celebrating the quadro centennial discovery of America by Columbus. The total number of men in the parade is 6,000 and it is safe to say that there are between 30,000 and 40,000 visitors in the city. The decorations are profuse on the line of the procession An interesting programme was carried out.

Catholic Columbian Centennial in Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 11. The Catholic Columbian celebration parade to-day of the boys in the Catholic institutions of Philadelphia was a big success. Over 8,000 gaily uniformed lads were in line. In addition to hundreds of banners and standards carried at the heads of the different bodies, every boy in the line carried an American flag. The parade was a blaze of color from beginning to end.

The Agitation Over the "Fake" Discoveries Continues.

Prosecution Fear they Can't Get Unprejudiced Jury.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Oct. 11. Local reporters are trying to learn the previous record of Detective McHenry, for whom the greatest hatred is expressed, particularly in police circles.

In most quarters it is felt that the whole story, including the apology, tends to weaken the government's case.

There is not any doubt now that the prosecution fears difficulty in obtaining an unprejudiced grand jury. Friends of the family and prisoner are much relieved by the Boston Globe's apology, but they are yet angry. Mr. Morse still urges his counsel to sue the offending paper. Mr. Jennings left the city this afternoon for Boston.

It is generally understood he had with him material for serving a writ of attachment.

The police say that many weak points in the evidence already submitted have been materially fortified, and before the grand jury meets they will have a strong case on lines laid down by them, when the arrest of Miss Borden was decided upon.

The feeling all over the city has changed in regard to the Borden case and the defendant's counsel is receiving encouraging telegrams from all sections, condemning the alleged disclosure of the case, and urging him to continue his work for Lizzie Borden. Directions to institute libel suits have been given to Mr Jennings, counsel for the defense.

LADIES' AUXILIARY.

Annual Meeting Tuesday Afternoon in the Y. M. C. A. Building.

The annual meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary connected with the Young Men's Christian Association was held yesterday afternoon at three o'clock at the lecture room of the Young Men's Christian Association building and there was a large attendance of the members of that very useful and well managed organization.

The election of officers for the ensuing year resulted as follows:

President, Mrs. N. E. Bragg.
Vice-President, Mrs. E. F. Dillingham.
Secretary, Mrs G. W. E. Barrows
Treasurer, Mrs J. G. Blake.

The different committees have not yet been entirely chosen. They are appointed by the president and will be selected at once

The usual routine business was transacted and the reports show that the organization has completed a successful year's work and that the outlook for the coming year is excellent. The auxiliary is a most valuable adjunct to the association and does a most praiseworthy and extensive work for the good of the young men of the city. The coming year's efforts will be fully as effective.

Claim of [illegible]. Referred to committee [illegible].

For the Campaign.

This being a Presidential year, and as the campaign opens early, THE WHIG will be sent to any address from now until the last of November, for fifty cents a month when paid in advance.

Charles W. Morse will sell another lot of heavy horses at auction on Saturday forenoon at the Windsor Hotel stables.

There will be no service at St. John's Episcopal church this evening on account of the absence of the rector at General convention.

Regular business meeting of the Crusade this afternoon at half past two. Prayer meeting to which all are invited at four. Held in the Crusade parlors, Franklin street.

Mr. E. F. Shaw has purchased of Mr. Harry D. Thurston his residence on Second street and will it is understood make some repairs and changes before occupying it.

There will be a joint convention of the teachers in Charleston and Corinth held in Town Hall in East Corinth on Saturday afternoon at 1.30. State Superintendent Luce will be present. All friends of education are cordially invited to be present.

The many friends in this city and vicinity will regret to learn of the death, at his home in Lawrence, Kansas, of Dr. S. B. Prentiss, news of which reached here yesterday, and will extend their sympathies to the bereaved widow.

A despatch received yesterday by Thomas White, Esq., announced the death in Brooklyn, N. Y., yesterday of A. A. Greenough, formerly of this city. He kept the National House for some years and will be remembered by our older citizens.

The first ice thus far reported was seen in this city yesterday morning. It formed on a roof, where there had been a little shallow water. The night was cold and still and the atmosphere was favorable for the formation. There have been several frosts this fall and the nights have recently been quite chilly.

The wedding of two prominent members of the Salvation Army Thursday evening, Oct. 13th, at the Y. M. C. A. building promises to be a very interesting affair. This will be the first army wedding that has ever taken place since they came to Bangor. It is said that the army has a most interesting wedding service.

The ceilings of the several rooms in Messrs. Robert Dobson & Co.'s elegant new office at Pittsfield are to be finely decorated. Messrs. Marston & Gorham, of this city, have the matter in hand and Mr. E. P. Marston, their foreman in that department of their business, left yesterday morning in charge of men to do the job.

Instruction in drawing has begun in the public schools in a most successful manner under the charge of Miss Whittier, who came to this city from Massachusetts to direct this branch of instruction The course will without doubt be beneficial and especially so to those who intend to study at some of the schools of technology after leaving the Bangor schools.

The ladies of the Columbia street Baptist church are making arrangements for a fair which will be held in the church vestry on December 11th and 12th. Fine needle work will be made a special feature of the fair and the articles will without doubt be in demand. There will be entertainments and suppers and a most successful event is anticipated. The previous fairs held at this church have had marked success.

The Railroad Commissioners and Bangor & Aroostook Railway Company officials who left yesterday morning to inspect the Bangor & Piscataquis division, took dinner at Greenville and went in the afternoon to the Katahdin Iron Works, where they passed the night at the Silver Lake Hotel. To-day they will visit part of the Canadian Pacific railway line and will return this afternoon. They are traveling by special train.

The new grocery store of Thompson & Arnold, Granite Block, has been put in fine condition, making it one of the neatest and most convenient stores for the business in the city. With a full and well selected stock of choice fancy groceries, they will be prepared to furnish their customers with the best in their line that the market affords, while their former experience in the business will be of much value both to themselves and their patrons.

Mr. Edward Blanchard, of Orono, a lumberman, while hunting in the vicinity of the Gulf, shot himself fatally and his body was brought to Orono on yesterday forenoon's train. It seems that while he was hunting he fell in some underbrush and the trigger catching in the brush the gun was discharged, the charge entering his shoulder. He was found by a man from the camp who was obliged to return for aid. When he reached Mr. Blanchard he was dead.

The class in penmanship at the Young Men's Christian Association which met for the first time Wednesday numbers thirty-four. The class meets again to-night and any young man desiring to enter can do so by paying $2.00 and thus becoming a member of the association. This membership ticket also entitles him to all the other classes free. The classes are held in the Bangor Business College rooms and are taught by the college teachers. This is a good chance for self improvement for our young men the coming winter.

It is reported that a Mr. Lynch, who runs a meat cart at Old Town, was stopped by a would-be highwayman last Saturday night, who, on his return from his daily route, stepped out and caught the horse by his head and held him up. The driver pretending to draw a pistol, told the marauder that he would give him a certain number of seconds to get out of the way, of which he quickly took advantage and the driver applied his whip to the horse and ran him into the city. It is about time that an example was made of some of these gentry.

UNITARIAN SOCIETY.

Annual Meetings and Sociable Tuesday Evening.

The annual meetings of the Unitarian church society and the Memorial Association were held last evening at the Memorial Parlors in connection with a pleasant sociable. A delicious supper was served and reports from the different departments of the church were heard. Afterwards Mr. E. C. Abbott, of Boston, gave an interesting address on general church work and the choir sang some

Mr. David A. Garland called into THE WHIG office last evening and related the circumstances of the burglary of his house on Stillwater avenue on Monday night. Some time during the night burglars came to his house and as shown yesterday morning there were a bicycle and a wagon engaged in the work as the tracks of both the bicycle and the horse and carriage were plainly to be seen. The burglars forced the key out of the front door, but failed to effect an entrance as it was bolted inside. They then went to the back door and forcing out the key and the door, contrary to usual custom, not being bolted, the door was opened by a false key.

The burglars entering the house took Mr. Garland's pantaloons, in which were a portemonnaie containing twenty dollars in bills, and a bag containing eight dollars and a fraction in silver, outside the house, rifled them of the money, and tossing the pantaloons, the portemonnaie and the change bag back into the house, took their departure, without disturbing any of the inmates. There is usually a dog about the house, but on this occasion he was unfortunately absent and the burglars were unmolested. It is believed that at least one of the number was acquainted with the premises and it is hoped that the culprits may be captured and made an example of. It may be said in addition that the carriage tracks came from and returned to this city, turning round in the door yard near the door step.

ASSOCIATED CHARITIES.

Annual Meeting Tuesday in the Common Council Room.

The 6th annual meeting of the Associated Charities was held yesterday afternoon at 2.30 in the Common Council room, City Hall building, and there was a large attendance of the members who are enthusiastic for the coming year's charitable work. After the report of the last meeting of the following constitution was read.

I. The name of this society shall be the Associated Charities of Bangor.

II. Objects—The objects of this society are to systematize, so far as possible, the entire charitable work of Bangor, in order to raise the needy above need of relief, prevent begging and imposition and prevent pauperism; to prevent indiscriminate giving to unworthy persons, to guard against several independent charities giving to the same person or family at the same time; to provide that the case of every applicant for relief shall be thoroughly investigated. The result of such investigation shall not be made public, but shall be at the disposal of the Overseers of the Poor, and of any person charitably interested in any particular case. To obtain employment if possible; if not, to obtain, so far as necessary, suitable charitable aid and a record of the aid given them; to procure visitors for the different wards of the city, and to do whatever else may secure the purpose of the organization.

III. Active members—The Society shall consist of a board of directors, officers and visitors. His Honor the Mayor, the Overseers of the Poor, the Chief of Police and the Health Officers; or any person may become a member by the payment of 25 cents annually.

IV. Honorary members—The pastors of all the churches, the leaders of all circles of King's Daughters and the officers of benevolent and industrial organizations shall be honorary members; also such other persons as the board may elect in consideration of their knowledge and interest in charitable, social and sanitary reforms.

V. Meetings—This society still holds its annual meeting on the second Tuesday in October. Meetings for the transaction of the ordinary business of the society shall be held on the second and fourth Tuesday of each month, from October till March inclusive. Special meetings may be called at the request of the president and two directors.

VI. Directors—The management of this society shall be vested in a board of directors each church, benevolent and temperance organization being entitled to one representative. The officers of the society shall be members of the board ex-officio. It shall be the duty of the directors to keep a full registry of all applicants for assistance for any deserving applicant, from public authorities, charitable agencies, or benevolent individuals; to make all relief either by alms or charitable work, conditional upon good conduct and progress. The fulfillment of these objects shall be entirely disassociated from any and all questions of creed, politics and nationality.

VII. Officers—The officers shall consist of a president, two vice presidents, a secretary and treasurer who shall be elected annually by ballot. These officers shall serve for one year, or until their successor shall have been chosen.

VIII. Amendments — These by-laws may be altered, amended or repealed at an annual meeting of the society, provided that notice of an intention to move such an alteration, amendment or repeal be included in the call for the meeting.

The election of officers resulted as follows:

President, Mrs. C. R. Mason.
Vice-Presidents, Mrs. S. C. Beach and Mrs. Sarah Palmer.
Secretary, Mrs. F. H. Noble.
Treasurer, Mrs. Lysander Strickland.

The following ladies were chosen a committee from the different churches and benevolent organizations, to have special oversight of the work, these ladies to have the privilege of calling others to their assistance when required.

First Congregational church, Mrs. J. H. Bowler.
Hammond street church, Miss Jennie Pickering.
Central church, Mrs. James A. Thissell.
First Baptist church, Mrs. Arad Thompson.
Second Baptist church, Mrs. George B. Ilsley.
Free Baptist church, Mrs. F. M. Pratt.
Pine street Methodist church, Mrs. A. W. Doane.
Grace Methodist church, Mrs. S. H. Thayer.
Episcopal church, Mrs. Charles C. Prescott.
Unitarian church, Mrs. Harriet S. Griswold.
Universalist church, Mrs. Henry Lord.
Advent church, Mrs. J. H. Robinson.
West Bangor church, Mrs. Lizzie Hayes.
St. Mary's church, Mrs. D. Hennessey.
St. John's church, Mrs. B. F. Adams.
Crusade, Mrs. H. E. Prentiss.
Benevolent Society, Miss Mary Hammatt.
Woman's Charitable Society, Mrs. Henry McLaughlin.
W. C. T. U., Mrs. Nathan Whitman.

Mrs. Morison, who has been a most efficient president since the organization of the society six years ago, resigned the office as she should be absent from the city the coming winter. Her resignation was very much regretted. Mrs. Mason, her successor, is well qualified in every way for the position and will fill it most acceptably.

It was decided to change the time of holding the meetings to the first and third Saturdays of each month.

The Associated Charities does a most commendable and wise spread work for the poor of this city and the ensuing year will see this work continued. All ladies are invited to attend the meetings and join the society that the work may be still more extended.

Basin Mills The Scene of Shocking Disaster.

Terrific Explosion in Pulp And Paper Mill.

Two Men Were Killed and a Dozen or More Were Injured.

Almost a Miracle That More Lives Were Not Sacrificed.

Roar Like Earthquake Followed by Great Destruction.

Fine Plant of the Orono Pulp and Paper Co. in Ruins.

The Cause of the Catastrophe as Yet Remains a Mystery.

Thrilling Experiences and Narrow Escapes From Death.

Stories as Related by Those Who Were in the Wreck.

What the Officials Say About the Loss and Rebuilding.

To a person standing in the midst of the scene of ruin and destruction at the ill-fated plant of the Orono Pulp and Paper Company at Basin Mills, as did representatives of THE WHIG yesterday a short time after the terrific explosion occurred, the wonder was that any of the twenty-five or thirty men who were directly employed within range of the disaster survived.

It is one of the mysteries.

The men, themselves, do not see how it happened that they were not instantly killed, as the danger was something fearful and from the appearance of the ruins it would seem that there was not one chance in a thousand of any one coming out alive, who was in that awful disaster.

It was only a few days ago that THE WHIG announced that the fine plant of the Orono Pulp and Paper Company had been leased to a new company which is now known as the Bangor Pulp and Paper Company, composed of Massachusetts and Bangor capitalists, at very favorable terms, viz: An annual rental of ten per cent. on the stock for twenty years and the privilege of purchase at the end of ten years by the payment of $125 per share for the stock of a par value of $100.

Now the new company has the paper mill, considerably damaged, part of the boiler house, a damaged acid tower and another building, used as the machine room and wet room, badly damaged, to show for the plant which was throbbing with life and activity only the day before yesterday, in fact only yesterday morning.

The Story of the Explosion.

Yesterday morning, probably at seventeen minutes of eight o'clock, for that is the time at which the clock in the pulp mill office stopped, presumably caused by the explosion, the larger portion of the whole fine plant was reduced to ruins in the twinkling of an eye.

There was no warning of any kind of the terrible calamity which was to come, and the shock came with such suddenness that no one there had an opportunity to run for his life.

No words in this or any other language are at all adequate to describe what followed. Imagine a two story brick building, huge metal digesters, great iron girders, wooden rafters, sulphur, steam and general debris, going heavenward with frightful velocity, and with an awful roar, and you have some idea of what took place at Basin Mills Tuesday morning, shortly before eight o'clock.

Add to this, great whirling masses weighing a half ton or a ton soaring into space hundreds of feet from earth and you can picture to yourself more vividly what happened. Then all this huge mass came back to the ground with a crash, bulging out the buildings which did not go up and breaking everything into atoms.

When THE WHIG reporters arrived on the scene all was one vast ruin, sides of structures almost falling out, and where the center of the destruction was, debris piled high in the air. Iron girders a foot and a half wide were bent and broken as though they had been twigs, and brick and plank were mixed in with pieces of iron and metal.

The Cause of the Explosion.

The cause of the explosion is what nobody knows. Superintendent Clark told the reporter that the representatives of the Hartford Insurance Company had thoroughly examined the digesters only recently and they stated that they were the best of any in the country.

A German named Richard Zine, one cook of the digesters, was relieving directly over one of the digesters in the story above and William Eddy was making a test just over the digester when the explosion came. The whole building went up in a mass, the metal of which the digesters is constructed being blown into many pieces and flying high in the air.

The noise of the explosion was described as like an earthquake shock and the great bodies of steam and sulphur which went up added terror to the scene. The digester room was 63x30 feet and two stories high and nothing of that remains standing. One of the digesters was apparently blown to pieces, while one swished out of shape, the walls on the side next the digester room being knocked flat and those on the further side being knocked out in some places and the others left in a toppling condition.

Workmen Buried in the Ruins.

As soon as the smoke and steam had somewhat cleared up so that it could be seen what had happened, and after those who were about and those who had collected at the place had gathered together their senses, the work of searching in the ruins for the dead and injured was commenced.

Fortunately the horror of fire was not added to the fatality, for reasons which will be related hereafter. Willing hands worked eagerly in the search and it was not long before the workmen came upon two bodies frightfully mangled and one of them in an almost unrecognizable state.

By means of various articles found and the knowledge of where the two men were when the explosion occurred, the remains were identified as those of Richard Zine, a German, and William Eddy, of Orono. The body of the German was horribly mangled, the whole top of his head being blown off and all his clothing taken off. After a search his vest, necktie, suspenders and trousers were found in many pieces, his suspenders having been cut into no less than eight pieces. Eddy was not so badly mangled.

Zine was undoubtedly instantly killed Eddy was taken out in an unconscious condition and died in about ten minutes. He was removed to his home before he breathed his last.

These were the only dead bodies found, but a number of men more or less seriously injured were discovered.

Eddy was blown high in the air to the top of the building. He was about twenty-six years of age and was unmarried. He lived near the mill Zine was probably about the same age and was also unmarried. Eddy was assistant cook of the digesters, as was also Zine. The latter's remains were taken to a house near by, where they were prepared for burial

Some of the Injured

The searchers did excellent work in getting out the persons who were so injured as to be unable to assist themselves Their injuries were attended to as soon as possible by the large force of physicians and surgeons who had been summoned there from this city and Orono, and their sufferings relieved as much as possible

The hook and ladder truck was taken to the mill and their equipment did good service in the work of rescue.

Among those more severely wounded was Austin Whitmore, who was probably the most seriously injured He had his thigh and legs broken and received terrible bruises and wounds about the head and body beside He is about thirty years of age. Walter Smith, the chemist, was badly bruised, and William Buchanan, who was in the filter room, was also severely wounded. Smith lives in South Brewer

Buchanan was pinned down by heavy timbers and was unable to extricate himself without assistance. It was at first feared that he was injured internally. It is thought that he will recover, however A man named Broulet was cut and bruised

C. Oleson was cut by glass and his leg was injured quite badly. James McKewon was cut in the head by falling timbers but was not seriously injured Willard Crosby was in the corner of the wet room at the time and he was thrown down through the floor with a mass of ruins to the ground floor, a distance of fifteen feet Strange as it may appear he was not seriously wounded. A man named Haley in the paper mill was hemmed in by falling timbers and was somewhat bruised He had the presence of mind to stop the machine before making his escape from the building.

There were several more men who were shaken up and bruised somewhat, but not seriously. The escape from more frightful injuries was indeed remarkable and the workmen may consider themselves exceedingly fortunate.

Crowd About the Ruins

Throughout the entire day men stood about the ruins with blanched faces as they discussed the horrors of the situation Many of these were men who had been employed in the mill at the time of the explosion and their nerves were still shaken from the effects of the terrible experience through which they had passed. THE WHIG representatives talked with a number of the men and were shown the very spots from which they succeeded in making their escape from among the ruins and unless one had the living proof before him he could hardly believe that men who were caught in this death-trap were still alive to tell the story

The force of the explosion was something terrific.

It not only shattered the building, but threw immense iron girders around as though they were tooth-picks. One of these girders more than twenty feet long was lifted over the roof of the standing building and landed in the mill yard beyond. Some men who were running a raft on the river heard the explosion and looked up in the air and saw what appeared to be a huge hogshead sailing over their heads It landed in the river with such force that the water was thrown into the air many feet, resembling a water-spout.

In the paper mill adjoining the men were dazed by the explosion and many of them had narrow escapes.

One man was lifted up bodily, swung around in the air and then fell to the floor with force enough to give him a severe shaking up. He made his way out of the building, however, without receiving serious injuries. Another was caught in the belt and was so dazed that he made no attempt to escape until the whole thing was over, when he crawled out uninjured. Both of these men were about the ruins in the afternoon and said they never expect to be so near death again and escape.

In the wood room a man was engaged in tending one of the machines and the first intimation that he had of any trouble was when the window directly behind him was knocked in with a crash, throwing him to the floor.

He was covered with dirt and the debris of the wreck, but quickly discovered that he had not received any injuries and hurried from the building. Superintendent Clark had a thrilling experience. He was in his office which was located in the building immediately adjoining the wrecked digester building. The shock was naturally very severe, and in order to escape from the room he had to climb over the partition and come out of a window.

One huge piece of iron was blown into the air to a great distance and it sailed over the acid tower, nearly a hundred feet high, into the mill pond beyond, a distance of several hundred feet. Landon the names of those who were recovered from the ruins, the injured, and those who were safe. The whole crew was accounted for so that it was known that only the two referred to were killed. Mr. Clark told a WHIG reporter there were 140 men on the pay rolls. There were thirty men in the pulp buildings and twenty in the paper mill. The majority of the workmen were employed in the yard and in the wood room.

What the Plant Consisted of

As one goes down the road to the mill, he first comes to the paper mill, in which are fine sets of machinery, the packing rooms and the other various important departments. Next to this is the building used as the wet room, machine room, etc., and then the digester room, beyond which are, or rather were, the storage tanks room, the filter room, and still further, the boiler room, the acid tower building, sulphur rooms, etc

As stated before, the digester room was 63 by 30 feet The engine room was 18 by 31 feet, the wet machine room 131 by 20 feet, and the boiler room was a large structure of brick with a massive iron roof. The end of the boiler room next to the filter room was blown out and the steam pipes broken off. The roof was badly twisted at that end and the walls left in such a condition that they were liable to fall in one place at the slightest provocation, for a short distance Only a comparatively few feet of the walls at the end were in this condition, however

Otherwise the boiler room is not greatly damaged. The acid tower is still standing, but how much damaged it is will only be discovered by an investigation of the foundation and an overhauling The side next to the explosion is covered with sulphur, and all the windows are broken out The glass on the other side is also shattered The big chimney does not appear to be injured at all, though why it was not is a mystery The paper mill is damaged on the side next the pulp mill the principal loss being from the walls being knocked down, but an officer of the company thought that $2,500 would repair the damage to the paper department

Most of the building used for the wet room and the machine room is still standing, but is full of debris and the interior timbers are crushed The damage there must be considerable As before stated the digester, filter and storage buildings are complete ruins The engine room is not very badly smashed An estimate of the total loss is given elsewhere in this report by Mr Sawyer People looking on the ruins would place the loss very high, but the members of the company are of course, better judges

Exciting Incidents and Narrow Escapes

Some of the stories related by the survivors of the disaster are of the most exciting nature and impress one with the fearful experience undergone by many of them and by what a slight chance it was that they were spared to tell the tales With such a number of narrow escapes there are a number of very thankful men in that vicinity now Six men were in the wet room and when the explosion took place they must have had remarkable presence of mind as they jumped through one of the windows to the ground below a distance of over twenty feet receiving only slight bruises

In doing this they undoubtedly saved themselves from being struck by the digester which crashed through the roof of their building, as that large body came down into the building directly in the spot where they had been, and it would appear that they must have jumped out while the digester was in the air in the act of coming down.

Mr Sidney Wyman, of this city, son of Cashier E. G Wyman, of the First National Bank, who is learning the business at the paper mill, was in the mill very near the partition of the digester room He says that the shock was something awful and the crash which resulted frightful The timbers fell in an instant and he managed to make his escape through a window He was not injured

Engineer Edward Peters, in the pulp department, had his life preserved by the merest chance. He had just gone through the digester room and then into the engine room when the eruption came A second's delay would have been fatal to him He was blown through the window of the engine room and cut about the head somewhat

Daniel Morrison and his brother, John Morrison had just gone for a pipe which they were to put in place in the digester room, and were in the act of returning with it when the explosion occurred They were not hurt but in an instant more would have walked into the very jaws of death

These are among the narrow escapes inside the building, while there were several cases outside, the ruins falling about in showers for quite a distance about

In walking about the site of the buildings one is surprised to find large fragments of iron wheels, etc., on the ground in every direction and some distance from the mills. There is a high trestle back of the mill and this is covered with objects which went up and were scattered by the tremendous force of the unseen power which wrought ruin and desolation Tuesday morning

Showed Rare Presence of Mind

Head Fireman James H. Mansfield is a very modest man, according to his appearance when interviewed by a WHIG reporter. Yet doubtless to him is due the saving of a large amount of property in the general wreck. At the time of the explosion he was in the boiler room near the rear door. The force of the concussion blew open the door and he went with it He was considerably shaken up by the fall, but did not forget what could be done by him in the emergency and seized the opportunity.

The explosion broke off the steam pipes and he knew that if prompt measures were not taken the boilers would follow the example of the digesters and explode, which would doubtless have added fire to the already sufficiently serious state of affairs. As he could not get at the pumps to shut them off he at once raked the fires, by this means saving the boilers and a probable calamity. He remarked in an off-hand manner that while he was raking the fires he did not know when the boilers might explode but he stuck to his post and did what he knew to be his duty in spite of the dangerous situation.

Sympathy for the Afflicted

The accident was a most heart-rending one and deep sympathy will be extended to the families which have been afflicted by the death of loved ones and the injured ones will have the fervent wishes of all for speedy and complete recoveries. The suspension of work in the pulp mill will throw quite a number of men out of employment until the plant is rebuilt, unless full of holes.

Interview With Mr. C. H. Sawyer.

A representative of THE WHIG had an interview last evening with Mr. C. H. Sawyer, who is a director in both the Orono Pulp and Paper Company, which owns the plant, and also a director in the Bangor Pulp and Paper Company, which is operating the works under a lease, and who is actively interested in the operations, visiting the works every day

Mr Sawyer said, in reply to enquiries, that he could give no description of the accident as it occurred, as he did not arrive there on the train until about two minutes after the explosion, but the dust had not yet settled away.

The scene that met his eye as he approached the ruins beggared description, and the one thing which surprised him the most was that any should have survived such a terrific explosion, where entire buildings were demolished and huge pieces of iron and thousands of brick were sent flying in every direction He described the position of the mills and the manner of the explosion, as related elsewhere, and the havoc made by the digester in its flight upward through the air and downward through the roof of the "wet room" When asked regarding the material of which the digester was constructed he said it was of oxidized bronze metal, without lining

As to the cause of the explosion he was unable to speak as he could in no way account for it, the digesters having been but recently inspected and pronounced by the inspectors to be in first class condition He had, he said, contemplated putting porcelain linings in them, but, had this been done he said, he could not see that it would have affected or have prevented the disaster as the cause was beyond his knowledge or conception

The Matter of Loss

Regarding the amount of loss he was of the opinion that outside of the insurance on the digesters, which he thinks is $30,000, the plant could be restored for $100 000 What action will be taken regarding rebuilding cannot be determined until a meeting is held of the Boston men controlling the operating company

He expects that they or some of them, will arrive here this morning and believes that arrangements will be made by them in concurrence with the lessees by which the work of construction will begin at an early day. Should this be done it will probably be as late as July next before the works will again be in operation

Mr Sawyer is naturally much shaken up by the sad event for aside from the loss of two valuable lives and the serious injury of many other persons it must have been hard for him to see the work to which he has so earnestly applied himself for so long, which has been admirably constructed and so successfully carried on under his management blown to the winds in a moment He is full of pluck however and feels confident that the plant will be again in running order as soon as the necessary work can be done

Coroner's Inquest

Coroner [illegible] was summoned to the scene and proceeded to empanel a jury An inquest will be held as soon as possible

The mill was built for a capacity of ten tons daily but has averaged 17 for some time it is said Work has been going on night and day and nearly every Sunday lately

Work of removing the rubbish was carried on all night

MAINE STATE COLLEGE

The Foot Ball Team Engages a Coach

Yesterday the manager of the Maine State College foot ball team wired Mr Haskell of last year's Bowdoin eleven engaging him as coach for the team, and he is expected to come to Orono at once and take charge of the college players Considerable interest in the game is manifested among the students and quite a large number is engaged in practice with the hope of becoming members of the varsity eleven The eleven has not been definitely chosen as yet and it will not be until the best men have clearly demonstrated their ability The arrival of the coach will be the signal for renewed work and practice better directed and a good eleven will doubtless be developed

The candidates are heavy, strong, quick and willing and all that is necessary is the learning of the fine points of the game and the development of team work Games will be arranged with Bowdoin and Colby, probably two with each One with each team will be played in this city

STATE OF MAINE.

AS HAPPY AS [illegible]

The Twin Babies of Mrs. C. T. Holbrook.

How They Came to be Plump and Healthy Youngsters.

When Born They Weighed Four Pounds Each—Fond of Beef Food.

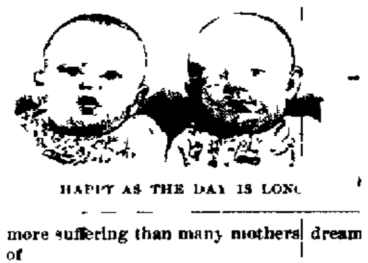
They say that man is born to sorrow as the sparks fly upward.

But many of these sorrows are of his own creation—or his parents'.

How few of us passed the first five years of life without suffering.

How many people there are who have been chronic sufferers from childhood, because they started in life's way weak and sickly, and just because they were improperly nourished.

The improper feeding of children causes more suffering than many mothers dream of



HAPPY AS THE DAY IS LONG

"My twin babies," says Mrs. C. M. Holbrook, of Cherry Creek, N. Y., "weighed but four pounds each when born, and were very delicate, but now, thanks to lactated food they are plump and healthy as can be. They are just as happy and good natured as they look, and fond of the food "

The reason that lactated food is so universally successful in such cases is simply that it is as nutritious as it is easily digested and assimilated Next to pure mother's milk, it is the best possible food for the little one and experience has shown that babies who leave the mother's breast, thrive better upon it, and become healthier and stronger than when fed in any other way.

The principal element of woman's milk is sugar of milk, and this is the basis of lactated food. With it is combined the nutritious elements of the great cereals, wheat, barley and oats, and the addition of the salts found in mother's milk make it a perfect substitute. Thousands of mothers, the country over, have written their unsolicited testimony of its great worth, and thousands of happy, smiling, healthful babies are the living evidence of what it does.

BREWER LOCALS.

Mrs. Brown and Miss Brown, of Sandy Point, are guests at the residence of Rev. B. B. Merrill on Main street.

Mr. William Wescott and family, of South Brewer, returned from a fishing and hunting trip up river.

Quite a large number of strangers were in the city, yesterday, here to attend the Congregational Conference at South Brewer.

Mr. A. S. Meservey's residence on Main street, at South Brewer, is receiving improvements and being brightened by the application of a fresh coat of paint.

The cellar under the building on Main street owned by Mr. C. J. Burr and occupied by Mr. E. N. Rowe as a store, is being enlarged, making an improvement.

Mr. John W. Holyoke leaves on the steamer Lewiston, to-day, for Boston, and will make a visit with friends and relatives in that city, Lynn and other places in the vicinity.

Miss Lottie Chandler, of Salem, Mass., arrived on the train Monday evening for a visit of two weeks with Mr. and Mrs. N. J. Bunker, at their residence on the corner of State and Washington streets.

Miss Virginia Dox, one of the New West Education Commission's Missionaries, who delivered a very interesting address at the session of Penobscot Conference at South Brewer yesterday afternoon, is to speak at the prayer meeting this evening at the First Congregational vestry, and many will doubtless attend to hear her story

The funeral of the late Mr. George Rider was held yesterday afternoon from his late residence on Washington street. A large number of relatives and friends were present to pay their last tribute to the deceased. Rev. B. B. Merrill, pastor of the First Congregational church, officiated in a feeling manner. The interment was made at Oak Hill Cemetery.

Misses Grace and Flo Arey, who have been stopping for some time at Katahdin Iron Works, are expected home in about two weeks. The first named has been in poor health and it was hoped that under the climatic influences at the resort mentioned, she would improve considerably. Her many friends will wish that a great change for the better may be apparent in her condition when she returns to this city.

Yesterday forenoon, just as an electric car was passing near Messrs. E. & I. K. Stetson's ship yard, the driver of a jigger loaded with barrels of old iron, attempted to turn his team just in front of the moving vehicle. The motorman rang the gong but the man shouted to him to wait a minute and hurried his horse. At a critical moment a post happened to be in the way and one of the shafts of the jigger struck it, making a dent, which was afterwards remarked to be an accident by a jocular personage, and stopping the vehicle so quickly as to throw the driver under the horse's feet The car had been stopped, however, and the man received no injuries of consequence, and got up and got his team turned around in due time.

PENOBSCOT CONFERENCE

The Opening Sessions of the Semi-Annual Meeting at South Brewer, Tuesday

The semi-annual meeting of Penobscot county Congregational Conference began yesterday forenoon with the Second Congregational church, at South Brewer, with a good attendance, Moderator C. H. Dole, of Holden, presiding. The forenoon session was opened with a devotional service, led by Prof. C. A. Beckwith, D. D., of the Bangor Theological Seminary, which was of a feeling character, and was followed by a business period.

The delegates made their reports as being in attendance and presented their credentials A nominating committee was appointed, consisting of Pierre McConville, of Bangor, E R. Packard, of Hampden and George C Wiswell, of Holden.

Then at 10 15 A. M. came the topic, "The Social Problem and the Church," which was assigned on the programme to Prof. C. J. H. Ropes, of the Bangor Theological Seminary and Mr. C. S Pearl, of Bangor. Prof. Ropes spoke first and made a very practical and able address on the question.

He suggested various methods of social work, a reading room with games, a debating club, educational classes, etc., all for the object of getting people together and interesting them in some common subject. In this work the spirit of Christ and of brotherly love should prevail, and it should lead on to work in religious lines. Mr. Pearl came next and spoke soundly on the social problem, the remedies for the present state of affairs, and what is already being done in various lines. He said the Golden Rule was the principle on which we should work in the social department, and gave many valuable hints to his hearers, who listened intently to his interesting words.

He was followed by Deacon James Crosby, of the First Congregational church, of Bangor, who referred to individual labor and preparation in a manner which held the attention of those present, giving appropriate and timely words of advice. Singing was interspersed between the parts of the forenoon's exercises, which were closed with the benediction by Rev. S. D. Towne, of Old Town.

An appetizing dinner was then served by the ladies in the chapel near by, which was partaken of heartily, and at 1.30 the afternoon session was opened.

The Afternoon Session

was begun by an impressive devotional service, which was followed by the reports from the different churches in the county, which were of an encouraging nature and of interest to all hearers. Next came the "question box," conducted by Prof. J. S. Sewall, of the Bangor Theological Seminary, who answered the queries propounded in a masterly manner, giving the inquirers much information of a good nature.

After this interesting part of the day's programme came the meeting of the Woman's Missionary Auxiliary. Mrs. S. A. Pearson, of Bangor, presided, and after a Scripture reading and prayer some report of what is being done by societies in the county in missionary lines was given. Then Mrs. Prof. Denio spoke feelingly in behalf of the Maine Missionary Society and the work which the Ladies' Auxiliary is doing, referring to the two lady workers, Misses Harlow and Washburn, who have recently been put into the field, and Mrs. Prof. Sewall made an effective appeal for foreign mission work, both being listened to with much interest.

Then Miss Virginia Dox, one of the New West Education Commission's missionaries, delivered an address. She told all [illegible] Landrop, who [illegible] to study it.

The subject, "Young People's Societies," was the next on the programme. Rev. S. D. Towne, of Old Town, showed what they were to the church, referring particularly to the committee work, and Rev. B. B. Merrill, of Brewer, spoke on what they may be, saying that they may be the very heart of the church. Miss Frances B. Upton, of Brewer, read a very interesting paper on Junior work.

Two duets were nicely presented during the evening, one by Ellen and Carrie White, of Brewer, the other by Charlie Stanley and Sophia Gratto, of South Brewer. The evening's exercises were closed with the benediction by Rev. B. B. Merrill. The following is to-day's programme:

Brewer's Coming Artist.

Our city has long been noted for its workers in clay, but this work has heretofore been but of the ordinary and utilitarian kind and many of the finest brick buildings in the country and constructed of Brewer brick. It has remained, however, for a young native of Brewer to mold the clay upon which our city is built into the likeness of "the human form divine," and on Monday evening, it was the great pleasure of a WHIG representative to be one of a small company of invited friends to witness, at the residence of his Honor, Mayor Tefft, the interesting process of removing the shell from the plaster cast of a bust of Gen. J. L. Chamberlain, the work of Mr. Tefft's youngest son, Charles, a boy of eighteen.

Some time since THE WHIG spoke of the fine work done by young Tefft in making a copy of a bust of Cæsar, and of the rare talent which it indicated. He followed that work with an excellent bust of his father which, being his first study from life, still further stamped him with the mark of genius and true artistic taste. His next work was an ideal head of a laughing girl and it, also, is a success. During the recent visit of General Chamberlain to his old home in Brewer, young Tefft conceived the idea of making a bust of him, and at his request the General gave him two sittings of an hour each, during which he made a bust in clay, which is a most excellent and striking likeness and one which the General thinks superior to any he ever had taken, and he has had three, for one of which he furnished twenty sittings.

The mould having been made and successfully removed from the clay model, the plaster cast was made, which was opened Monday evening, and to one—like all present except the artist and his family—who had never seen the work performed, it was an exhibition of much interest and when, the outer coating having been removed, the lifelike representation of General Chamberlain, dressed in a Major General's uniform, appeared an expression of surprise and admiration burst from all.

Mr. Tefft will present the bust to Mrs. C. O. Farrington, Gen. Chamberlain's sister, whom he has been visiting, and it will be highly prized by her.

Young Tefft has never taken a single lesson in drawing, nor sculpture, neither has he ever seen a sculptor at his work, yet he has some of the finest pen drawings and designs that are often found, while his sculpture work is a marvel.

We are pleased to learn that he is to improve his talents and is soon to go to New York to enter the New York Institute for Artist Artisans, No. 140, West 23d street, of which General Chamberlain is President, a position to which he was elected while here and after he sat for his bust. It is a little singular that while young Tefft had never seen the General nor know that he was connected with or interested in any institution of art, that his impulse to make a "counterfeit presentiment" of him should have resulted in his entering a school of instruction of which the latter is President. May his success be equal to his promise and Brewer will have a son to whom she can point with pride as our own artist.

GERMAN [illegible]

Superior Veterinary Skill of the Austrians.

BERLIN, Oct. 9, 1892. The interest of all Berlin has centred in the last eight days at the Templehofer field. This spot has presented, since last Sunday, the aspect of a fair ground. Officers of the guards, diplomatists, society leaders, court officials, sportingmen and staid solid tradesmen have crowded to it, night and day, to learn the latest news from the long distance race.

A few German officers bet on Count Starhemberg, and as they got good odds, they won heavily. The vast majority, however, bet according to their prejudices and lost immense sums. Sporting men, who, from the first, backed the Vienna riders, have profited greatly at the expense of the military and aristocracy.

The sacrifice of good horseflesh has been lamented by the bourgeoise and their newspaper organs are asking: "What good did it all do?" In fact, it has done much good from the German point of view, and is likely to lead to some important innovations in the German cavalry.

The most important result of the race has been the demonstration that the veterinary department of the German army is behind the times. The majority of the Austrian horses were in fairly good condition when they arrived The majority of the German horses staggered past the finish post in Floridsdorf ruined for further cavalry service or for any service at all.

The Emperor feels greatly chagrined by the evidence of the superior veterinary skill of the Austrians, and has ordered that a special inquiry be made by a commission of cavalrymen into the Austrian methods of handling horses and the defects of the present German methods.

Some German cavalrymen have tried to excuse themselves by making much of the fact that the Germans had to cover a hilly country at the end of their ride when the horses were exhausted, while the Austrians could cover the worst roads while their horses were freshest. Generally, however, the test is considered to be as fair as possible. Expert horsemen here agree with the Emperor that the conditions, even to the qualities of the horses, were equal, and that the Austrians won through superior knowledge of the treatment of horses.

An analysis of the mounts shows this view to be indisputable.

Of the 109 German entries nine were English thoroughbreds or hunter stocks, 14 were English half-breeds, five were Hungarian and one was Russian. The rest were bred in Germany, most of them with strains of English blood on the side of the sire or dam.

Among the 121 Austrian horses, there was not a single thoroughbred, despite all reports to the contrary. Eight of them had strains of good English blood, forty-eight were bred in Austria-Hungary, many by imported English sires One was by a Cossack sire, another by an Arab sire out of an English thoroughbred mare, was bred in Russian Poland. One was a pure Arab Sixty were of unknown pedigree. If there was any choice of mounts it certainly did not incline toward the Austrians.

Another point which indicates the same lesson for the Germans is given in Vienna dispatches as regards the work of Baron Reitzenstein, who made the best record of all the Germans, having covered the course in something over 73 hours and come in second to Count Starhemberg only.

Reitzenstein's treatment of his 12 year-old Lippspringe was in striking contrast with the brutality and ignorance shown by the other 208 German riders toward their mounts. He rode an equal number of hours day and night. He rested for 15 minutes after every 30 miles, and two hours after every 130 miles.

During the long rests Lippspringe was unsaddled, rubbed down with wet cloths and was washed in a special lotion. Twelve pounds of oats and peas mixed were given him. A small dose of tepid water with Carlsbad salts was administered after eating to facilitate digestion. During the short rest the horse got a small quantity of hay mixed with Carlsbad salts and a cake made of oats, Indian corn meal and eggs, and dissolved with flour in tepid water. Every 12 miles, moreover, the horse's mouth and head were sponged with cold water.

Reitzenstein assisted in feeding and sponging the horse, and during the long pauses slept in the stable by the horse's side. After rest he walked beside the horse for the first half hour, then mounted and rode at a smart trot for an hour and a half or two hours, gradually reducing the speed as he approached unfavorable ground. In the hilliest country Reitzenstein dismounted and ran along beside the horse. He did not use spur or whip once until within 60 miles of Vienna. He had lost an hour and a half in the fog, he says, and felt compelled to force the pace somewhat.

The first report of Lippspringe's condition at the Floridsdorf finish post is a great exaggeration. The horse was distressed, but suffered from no radical trouble, and to-day is about as well as ever. No plucky horse was in [illegible] certainly, for, although one shoe was gone and another was broken, he covered the last forty miles of the course at the rate of 13½ miles an hour.

Lippspringe is an Irish hunter and formerly was a carriage horse in Ghent, where Baron Reitzenstein bought him for 1,200 marks. The baron broke him to the saddle. That with such a modest past the horse should have made such a creditable record, is due, without doubt, to his master's humanity and intelligence in veterinary matters.

The most important result of the race will be the spirit of comradeship promoted by it among the best young cavalrymen of both armies. There has been complete absence of jealousy throughout the event, and the Austrian officers have been treated with as sincere cordiality as could be desired by them. On Monday evening the Emperor will receive the Austrian riders and will speak to them formally, it is expected, of the desirability of promoting close comradeship between the officers' corps of the allied armies of central Europe.

Castine News

Our correspondent writes: The Coburn Cadets, one hundred strong, arrived on steamer Sedgwick Tuesday. It being stormy, A. M. Devereaux invited them to quarter at his house which invitation was accepted. Wednesday morning, at 4 o'clock, a detachment marched to Fort George, and drove in the guard and took the Fort before the long roll was sounded. During their stay in Castine they drilled, fired at target, etc. Most of the time they were here it was stormy, which made it unpleasant for them. While marching they made a fine appearance, and much credit is due to Lt. Hersey, their drill master. They left on Friday on the steamer Cimbria. Many old veterans remarked that their march was perfect, and we trust we may again see them in Castine when we can do more for them.

John Rea has broken ground for his new house which he is to build at the corner of Court and Broadway.

Mr. W. E. Mansur, architect, from Bangor, came on the Cimbria Thursday He will make plans for General Bolan's new cottage, which he is to build this fall.

Mr. T. O. Blake and family, and Nathan Morse and family, have closed their cottages for the season, and left for their homes last week.

Mr. Edward Morey and family left Tuesday for Bangor, where they stayed a few days before returning to Boston.

Miss Schenck and Miss Way closed their cottage and left on the Frank Jones, Friday, for Philadelphia.

Hon. E. B. Gardner and Mr. H. H. B Parker, of Bucksport, was in town, Friday, on business.

At the head of all blood-purifiers is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. But it's different from all of them. Whatever is claimed for this, it's guaranteed to do. The money is refunded in every case where it fails to benefit or cure. It's because it is different that it can be sold so. All diseases originating from a torpid liver or impure blood yield to it. It cleanses and purifies the system, freeing it from all manner of blood-poisons, no matter from what cause they have arisen. For Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Scrofula, Salt-rheum, Tetter, Erysipelas, or any blood-taint or disorder, it is an unequaled remedy. Nothing else can take its place.

"Golden Medical Discovery" contains no alcohol to inebriate, and no syrup or sugar to derange digestion.

It's a concentrated vegetable extract; put up in large bottles; pleasant to the taste, and equally good for adults or children; works equally well all the year round.
